ment for Gathering City Revenues, He Says.

VIEWS ON BANK DEPOSITS AFFECTS JAPANESE TOO

Although Chamberlain Bruere has increased the city's revenue by $114,041 cost of his office twice over-by increasing the interest received from banks on city deposits he still believes be made a genuine department of the city treasury with the duty of collecting money as well as safekeeping it. In his annual report to the Mayor, made public yesterday, he says there is no logic in the present arrangement thereby water revenues are collected by the Water Department, license fees by the License Department, taxes and asessments by the Comptroller and permit fees by a host of bureaus and offices.

"Good administration," he says, "de mands that there be one central collection office for all city revenues, as every recent Charter Commission after a study has recommended."

In his judgment responsibility for all fiscal functions of the city should be placed in the Finance Department and there is no need of a separate treasury establishment. He points out that merging the Chamberlain's with the Comptroller's office would increase rather than decrease current expenditure, but in the end would be a good arrangement. New York, the Chamberlain says, is

New York, the Chamberlain says, is the largest city borrower in the world. It borrowed more than $550,000,000 in 1913 and loans to the banks in the form of deposits $700,000,000 a year.

"I am in favor," he says, "of distributing deposits just as widely, first, as safety requires and, second, as the credit advantage to the city warrants. City deposits should not be used as a form of patronage. If they are so used they will sooner or later again he late form of patronage. If they are so used they will sooner or later again be abused. The principle governing distributions should be either in the form that interest on balances, with safety as those seeking the B. S. degree be permitted to offer Chinese classics or Sanscrit in place of Latin and Greek for entrance requirements; that those seeking the B. S. degree be permitted to offer Chinese classics or Sanscrit in place of Latin and Greek for entrance requirements; that of interest on balances, with safety as the first consideration, or credit accom-modation afforded, or both."

He suggests that the number of city depositories might be reduced to those banks which are able individually to lend the city $500,000 under the legal iend and city 3500,000 under the legal imitation of 10 per cent. of the bank's capital and surplus.

"This proposal in private business would seem to be wholly sound," he says. "The question as to whether it is a proper arrangement for a municipality warrants further consideration.

"My judgment is that the city should strive to reduce the necessity for bor-rowing funds by shifting back the date of tax payments. From the semi-annual tax payment plan instituted by Comptroller Prendergast in 1911 the greatest benefit has been derived." Bruere also says there is no

Mr. Bruere also says there is no sufficient reason for continuing the Sinking Fund Commission as an independent body merely for the custody of sinking funds. He would have the commission's functions transferred to the Board of Estimate.

"More and more," he says, "the city, if it is to be well governed, should develop toward the city manager plan. In the organization of the city government, due to the patchwork method of charter revision for the last fifteen years, we have in many respects spapped halfway in the achievement of businesslike, effective results. One of the distinct relics of the past order of things is the office of Chamberlain."

Columbia University has decided it has not been giving its Chinese and in eleven months-enough to pay the Japanese students a square deal by exacting of them the same amount of English scholarship that it insists upon in native students. It has therefore dethe office should either be abolished or cided to change entrance requirements for the Orientals and somewhat modify the curriculum in their favor.

The matter was first taken up when H. R. Steeves, assistant professor of English, wrote to Dean Frederick P. Keppel telling of the failure of the Chinese students "to connect." It is due, Prof. Steeves thought, to their poor command of English and their different classroom traditions

The professor said Columbia should be nterested in knowing not whether the Oriental has read certain books in English but whether he can understand the talk of the classroom and can make himself understood.

The example of Yale, which has had many Far Eastern students, was pointed to. There the Chinese student may offer his knowledge of Chinese as the equivalent of an ancient language and the Japanese may offer Japanese in place of a knowledge of a modern tongue. Both take the English examination as an examination in a foreign tongue.

Episcopal Church for prayer for unity. Bishop Lawrence of Massachusetts sent out a prayer which was widely used.

Bishop Lawrence of Massachusetts sent out a prayer which was widely used.

"It seems providential," said Dr. Manning, "that there is organized and well under way a movement which calls upon the Christian forces of the world to come together for conference. At this moment more than fifty of the great religious communions of the world are identified with the undertaking for a world conference, including all of the Anglican communions in all paris of the world. Great interest is also felt in the movement by the Russian and Eastern churches and by the Roman Catholic Church. A deputation has been appointed and is under orders to interview the heads of all the churches in all the countries of Europe at the first moment conditions permit, with a view to arranging for the world conference as speedily as may be.

"Christians are asking themselves to-day whether the church might not have prevented this awful world war if it had been able to speak with united volce.

"We helieve Christian unity is possible, although we admit the difficulties to be overcome are enormous. It is given to Billy Sunday.

"And the bilizard prevented it. In the movement by the Russian and Eastern churches and by the Roman Catholic Church.
